HISTORIC REMINISCENCES OF THE POTOMAC. -An old soldier, who had been a participator in one of the events described, accompanying some friends on an excursion down the Potomac, pointed out several places of historic interest on the river below Mount Vernon .-The first was what is called the White House Bluff. Near this point, on the Virginia side, the channel of the river runs, and ships of war are compelled to move within easy rifle-shot of the shore. On this bluff Com. Porter, upon short notice, had planted three small cannon, for the purpose of firing on the vessels which had captured Alexandria. The Commodore had with him some sailors, a company of artillery from Alexandria, commanded by Capt. Griffith, and a company of riflemen from Jefferson county, Va., under Captain Humphreys. He had, however, no time to throw up breastworks, and a heavy gun was disabled on the way to the point. On the 5th September, 1814, Capt. Gordon, finding the wind favorable for descending the river, put his fleet in motion, the small craft laden with flour and other stores taken from Alexandria being kept on the Maryland side, out of reach of the battery. The Eurylis, the flag ship, had to pass within a hundred yards of the guns of Com. Porter, who discharged his pieces rapidly, but without damage, whereupon the frigate was careened over so as to bring her guns to bear upon the battery, and EMPRESS, VICTORIAS, in a few minutes the three one-pounders were rendered useless. Meanwhile the rifle company was placed on the left within range of the frigate, in a thick piece of woods, and its members, mostly good marksmen, used their pieces so skillfully as to displace every man who appeared on deck or in the rigging .-Grape shot was vigorously dealt out by both tice. frigates, the Sea Horse and Eurylis, and the whole fleet passed down defiantly. Of Capt. Humphrey's company, one man was killed and six wounded; the other casualties are not remembered. Eight miles lower down, on the Maryland side, is Indian Head, near which the channel of the river runs. Here Com. Perry was stationed with a few cannon and several light companies from the District, one of which was Captain Steel's, and another Captain Andrew's. It required but a little while for the British war vessels to pass this point also with their tenders. The casualties to our troops on that side from the shower of grape-shot are not ROUND PLASTER.

Com. Gordon admitted, in his official report large war vessels with small arms. - Washington Express.

DIVORCES IN CHICAGO.—Last spring, a young man named Oliver P. McIlrath, an employee of the firm of Austin, Clapp & Co., became tired of his wife, and brought suit for divorce, though he had very little testimony to offer. He alleged in his declaration that his wife was too old for him, and that she had deceived him as to her age when he married her. He also declared that he had been a that his wife deserted him in January, 1865. His attorney, Benjamin Haskell, testified as published. All this time Mrs. MeIlrath was in Cleveland, where she was provided with a boarding TAKE NOTICE. house by her husband, only two weeks before the suit was commenced, and where she was maintained at his expense, receiving letters and money from him frequently. The publication of notice required in case of a non-resident defendant was made in the Western Merchants' Price Current, a paper which is chiefly devot- Call and see them. ed to the markets and the advertisements of wholesale merchants, and is very rarely looked at by ladies. Of course Mrs. McIlrath did not see it. Her first notice of the proceedings was the announcement that a decree had been granted. She came to this city immediately, and has now made application to have the decree of divorce set aside. All the facts stated above were substantiated, not only by her own testimony, but also by affidavits of Mclirath's own father, mother and brother. McIlrath own father, mother and brother. Mclirath lived with his wife in Cleveland until last April. GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS!

The attorney who swore as to her non regidence. The attorney who swore as to her non residence knew nothing of her or her residence except what his client told him. The wirnesses who swore as to the desertion, and said they were acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. McIrath, are entirely unknown, even by name, to Mrs. Mc-

Upon the hearing Judge Van Buren declared that beyond a doubt this case presented above goods, to which the attention of purchasmore odious features than any case that he ers is called, CHAS. W. GREEN, had heard or read of. At the same time ha signified his intention hereafter not to receive in his Court as legal publications the insertion 1 of advertisements in unknown periodicals.-He also seemed inclined to the opinion that something is necessary to be done to weed the bar of persons practising as attorneys who can be, in violation of their oaths, guilty of the practices pointed out in their own pleadings; and he at once ordered the decree to be opened, and granted to the defendant twenty days to file an answer. - Chicago Past.
